The Maid of Honor Kit

Everything you are asked to carry, organized.

WHAT IS INSIDE

— Duties timeline, engagement to wedding day
— Questions to ask the couple
— Shower planner and gift tracker
— Bachelorette planner
— Budget split sheet
— Speech builder and practice log
— Day-of emergency kit and run sheet

HOW TO USE THIS KIT

Before you start

Every couple wants something different from their maid of honor. Start with the questions page and fill it in with the couple, then use the rest of the kit for the jobs they actually hand you.

Money is the part that causes the most friction. Agree budgets for the shower and bachelorette before anything is booked, and use the split sheet so everyone sees the same numbers.

SO YOU HELP WITH THE RIGHT THINGS

Questions to ask the couple

Which jobs would you most like help with?

Who is hosting the shower, and what budget feels right?

What kind of bachelorette (if any), and what should it cost each person?

Anything you do not want: themes, games, people, surprises?

Do you want a toast from me? How long?

Who should I call on the day if something goes wrong?

A TOAST IN FIVE PARTS

Speech builder

Aim for about two to three minutes, roughly 250 to 400 words read slowly. Short is kind to everyone.

1. Hello

Who you are and how you know them, in one sentence.

2. A story

One short, kind story that shows who they are. Nothing a grandparent should not hear.

3. Them together

What you have seen change since they met.

4. A wish

What you hope for them.

5. The toast

Ask everyone to raise a glass, and say their names.

COLLECT MATERIAL

Speech prompts

The first time you met them:

A story that makes you laugh every time:

What their partner brings out in them:

A word that sums them up, and why:

Your wish for them:

SAY IT OUT LOUD

Speech draft and practice

Write the draft here, then read it aloud with a timer. Cut anything that needs explaining to half the room.
